Loma Linda Academy

Malia met her mentor six years ago in 2014 when he moved to her area and they became neighbors. The street they live on was actually named after his wife. He has an orange grove of 93 trees and each year has generously allowed Malia, her family, and a few friends to come over and pick oranges. Her favorite PFE visit so far was when they talked about his time in the navy during World War II. Interesting fact - while he was in the war, he never had a gun. Malia has also picked pumpkins from his garden and learned that he likes to square dance!

Shenandoah Valley Academy

Carrie White, a sophomore at SVA, is learning a specific set of new skills through her experience with mentor Dr. Mashburn – surgery! Of one recent visit, she reports in her reflection that, “This week, we did homework, had a worship thought, and learned to do sutures.” Carrie and Dr. Mashburn include dedicated worship the first visit of every month. Then Dr. Mashburn, a retired surgeon, is teaching Carrie specific sutures. Carrie wants to be a doctor, so this type of mentoring is inspiring for her. They used a practice kit, seen in the photos, to learn several different types of stitches. Carrie describes one visit in this reflection:

"This week our worship talk was about standing firm for God. [Dr. Mashburn] had a demonstration with egg: from the outside, you can't tell which one is boiled, and which one is raw. The only way to tell without breaking them is to spin them. The one that spins well is boiled. He applied this to our lives, saying if you can't tell if someone is a real Christian from the outside, and if you are a real Christian, you will be able to get through life and not wobble with God's help. After that, while we were learning to stitch, he was telling me how things are in the OR, and what different stitches you use for different wounds. I think this was by far my favorite visit! I had so much fun learning to stitch, and not many teenagers can say they learned that for work! The devotional about the eggs was also really nice. I really hope that I get to do more sutures in the future! I think he enjoyed this visit, his wife told us that Dr. Mashburn was really excited to teach me."
